A police spokesman, Sgt. Lamont Washington, said the department was made aware of the email and is looking into it. He said police "have no other comment to offer. "

The email begins by saying: "I know it is hard to keep our thoughts and opinions to ourselves sometimes, especially when we, as a whole or as an individual, become the target of people in the public who criticize what we do without even knowing the facts.

"These ANTIFA and BLM people, especially the ones who just jumped on the bandwagon 'yesterday' because they became 'woke' (insert eye roll here), do not deserve a second glance or thought from us, " it continues. "Our little pinky toenails have more character, morals, and ethics, than these punks have in their entire body. "

"Do not stoop to their level. Do not respond to them. If we do, we only validate what they did. Don't make them important, because they are not. They will be the ones washing our cars, cashing us out at the Walmart, or living in their parents' basement playing COD for their entire life. "

"COD" refers to the video game "Call of Duty. "

Hallahan goes on to say, "If you need to bitch about it and get it off your chest, come to my office and we can vent together. " She also claimed that officers "are being doxed merely because people just don't like being told what to do or what not to do by police. "
In an interview on Apple TV+►s The Oprah Conversation, the hitmaker discussed her memoir, The Meaning of Mariah Carey, and a lot of the conversation centered around her personal relationships with her immediate family ► her mom, Patricia, and ►ex-► siblings, brother Morgan and sister Alison. (Her dad, Alfred, died in 2002.)

►I would never have spoken a word about anybody in my life ► and I tried to be very fair ► but people have drawn first blood with me historically, ► said 50-year-old Carey, whose siblings have been selling stories about her to tabloids for decades. ►I know you understand this: When there are people that are in any way connected to you as a person that has achieved any success, you are a target. You►re vulnerable. ►.
